Hendquarters army of the Potomac, } Turkey Island. July 2.

The following is an account of the battles in front of Richmood, on Sunday, Monday and Tues-day, being the fifth, sixth and seventh days of the day, being the fifth, sixth and seventh days of the engagement:

On Sunday morning the corps of Gen. Summer and Gen. Frankin were left in the works at Fair Oaks with instructions to evacenate and protect the baggage and supply trains on their way to James River. They had hardly left their position and were falling back on the railroad and Williamsburg tampike, when the rebels discovered the movement and immediately started in pursuit with their whole forces. So rapidly did the rebels approach that our forces had inardly time to place their man in position to receive them before they were upon them.

The enemy advanced to the attack at two o'clock, which was promptly met by our forces.

The battle lasted till dark, during which the enemy suffered terribly, advancing in a solid mass to within a short distance of our artilley.

The effect of our guns upon their ranks was fearful, killing and wounding them by the hundreds.

At dark the enemy was repulsed and forced to Whilst his battle was in progress, other important events were transpiring.

All the commissary and quartermaster's stores, unable to be moved, were committed to the flames together with a large amount of ordnance stores.

The large houses at the station and adjoining grounds which were filled with our sick and wounded, whom it was impossible to get away, were left under the care of our surgeons, with all the uncessaries at hand for their comfort, they numbered 700 and are now in the hands of the coemy.

doned and fired to make room for the passage of artillery.

The fight was renewed early on Tuesday morn-ing by the rebels, they eridently intending to crush our army. It lasted about three hours, re-sulting in considerable loss on both sides. The snemy then retired, leaving the field to our troops. The rebels again advanced about three o'clock in the afternoon in considerable numbers, but re-tired after being shelled by the gunboats and ar-tillery for two hours, without coming near enough for musketry to become engaged.

Haltimore, July 12.

Baltmore, July 12,
Richmond Dispatch, of the 8th, admits that McClellan secured safety to his army to a most, masterly manner. President Davis has issued an order to the rebel army saying, although they were greatly outnumbered by the enemy, they had won a great and glorious victory.
Grand final battle was expected upon Tuesday mening, but as reporters were shut out from the lines nothing could be learned.

Washington, Joly 11.

Account brought by President's party from Headquarters of the army of the Protome give a cheering view of the position of things in that vicinity. Our ontire losses in the several battles do not exceed 11,000 in killed, wounded and missing. Stranghers are continually coming in—The enemy's loss no doubt, is exceedingly large. It was understood before the late battles that McClellan made arrangements with the rebel authorities for the general exchange of prisoners, and that Gen. Dix had been instructed to communicate the same.

Riebmond dispatches to July 1st and 2d still claim that the rebels captured eight generals, 12, 000 prisoners, all McClellan's seige guns, and supplies enough for the rebel army for three months.

They represent the battle of July 1st the most desperate and fearful of the entire war.

Later dispatches state that there were conflicting reports about the battle, and it was impossible to get official information.

The precise situation of the Yankee army is not known.

It is claimed that Hooker and Sumner were wounded, and Sumner captured.
